Scope and Content Note

The Herbert A. Clark Diaries (1906 – 1940) form one linear foot and are arranged chronologically in two document boxes. The diaries include accounts related to either Clark's business or church activities. In addition to the diaries, there is a summary of Mr. Clark's Baptist related entries. One, in particular, is of his involvement in St. Elmo Baptist Church, Chattanooga, Tennessee, compiled in 1970 by his son, James V. Clark. Though brief in narrative, the diaries also make references to contemporary national and denominational events, such as the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and the $75 Million Campaign. James V. Clark donated the diaries to the Southern Baptist Historical Library and Archives (the Southern Baptist Convention Historical Commission) in 1970.
